

January 2023 Intersession

ENGL 4933 Studies in Popular Culture and Popular Genres

Topic: “The Films of the Coen Brothers”

Teacher: M. K. Booker

Textbooks Required: Digital textbook will be supplied free of charge.

Description: The purpose of this course will be to provide a cultural history of the films of Joel and Ethan Coen, from Blood Simple (1984) through The Ballad of Buster Scruggs (2018). We will pay special attention to the engagement of the Coens’ with alternate reality versions of various American settings, as well as their engagement with their cultural predecessors in film and other media.

Essays, exams, and other major requirements: Due to the nature of intersession courses, no formal essay will be required. All students will be required to submit brief writing assignments on a daily basis throughout the duration of the class. A final exam will be given.

Description: We will read four plays by Shakespeare and watch many film adaptations of these works—some at full length and many more as clips. Here is a sampling: we will analyze Asta Nielsen’s 1921 Hamlet starring herself, and we will compare modern Hamlets played by David Tennant, Patrick Stewart, Benedict Cumberbatch, Adrian Lester, and Andrew Scott. We will look at selections from Aki Kaurismaki’s Finnish Hamlet Goes Business and from Kurosawa’s The Bad Sleep Well. We will view The Tempest in a science-fiction adaptation and in a stop-motion puppet production. We will see Caliban played as everything from a hairy, white-skinned Neanderthal to an angrily proud colonial slave. We will familiarize ourselves with adaptations of Twelfth Night that include Dinita Gohil playing Viola in a sari and an all-male stage production featuring Mark Rylance in a Tudor dress and Stephen Fry in yellow stockings. We will analyze a 1911 Merchant of Venice with a Shylock played as a grotesquely stereotyped Jew and watch Al Pacino’s culturally complex portrayal of Shylock in 2004, asking ourselves what it means that this production elides Portia’s racism. We will not search for the “best” version of each play or criticize productions for not being “faithful” to the written texts; instead, we will use our literary- critical powers to discuss how each director uses the materials of cinema to give a particular interpretation of a play, how each director’s interpretation speaks to and from its cultural moment, and what that director’s interpretation means to us in terms of the intersectional issues of today. We will read half of a play each night; class time will consist of discussion and film-watching, but there will be some lectures, and students taking the course at the 6000 level will give class presentations.

No specific prior knowledge of Shakespeare is required, but students should already be fairly comfortable with reading Shakespeare’s language, because this class is not an introduction to Shakespeare. If you have taken an undergraduate course that included some Shakespeare, you should be fine.

Essays, exams, and other major requirements: Due to the time constraints of Intersession, there will not be a full-length essay requirement. Instead, there will be very short writing assignments—some at home, some in class—and a final exam. Active and consistent class participation will be the central requirement, but the class will be relaxed and mutually supportive in this regard. Students taking the class as ENGL 6203 will conduct a moderate amount of research into literary criticism of one or more film adaptations and will make a brief presentation about what they have learned.
